Q: Qt: Digg it, post it, or rate it I am working on a new Todo application for school and I am looking for ideas on how to share what I'm working on with the community. My immediate concern is that I'm stuck on what to call the application. It is a todo list and I'm looking for a name that reflects this. I've already tried Search, Task, TODO and list, but none of them seem right. I've also tried to find a book or something about the subject, but I can't seem to find anything that really speaks to what I'm doing. Thanks in advance for any ideas, Nick A: What about Tasks? However, I doubt there's a best practice book on that. VANCOUVER, Wash. — One of the U.S. men's eight sailors already competing in the 2019 rowing World Cup is now facing charges in connection with an alleged kidnapping in Chechnya. Yevgeny Dubinin, the 2018 World Rowing Team member, is accused of kidnapping, stealing and torturing a U.S. citizen by the name of Denis Yevtushenko in Chechnya. The 19-year-old Vashkivh, who was part of the eight boat in Varese, Italy, on Aug. 3, told the Canadian Broadcast Company (CBC) that he was beaten with a rake and had his finger cut off by his captors. He said that they told him that he wouldn't be able to leave because he was "pregnant." The suspect, Dubinin, is still currently awaiting extradition to the U.S. The suspect, Dubinin, is still currently awaiting extradition to the U.S. The Vashkivh family has alleged the Chechen government is behind the ordeal. The family stated that their son's cellphone and other belongings were taken by his captors. "He is one of many that have been kidnapped, tortured and some killed. So the situation in Chechnya is horrible and they're living in horrible situations. We have to do something about it," Yevgeny's father said. "We have to do something about it. We have to do something about this because it's all gone too far." His trial in the U.S

Isabel Pérez's surgical outcomes after extraocular muscle transposition: 10-year follow-up of 103 patients. To determine the surgical outcomes of extraocular muscle (EOM) transposition for strabismus using a retrospective analysis of 10-year follow-up data. 103 patients (137 eyes) who were operated from 1983 to 1994 by the same surgeon underwent EOM transposition for acquired or congenital strabismus with the aim of improving the binocular vision. The postoperative deviation of primary position before and after surgery were measured by cover tests. At the 10-year follow-up, the surgical outcomes were evaluated in terms of postoperative deviation of primary position before and after surgery, the stereoscopic vision, patient satisfaction, and the correlation between the extraocular muscle function and the alignment. The postoperative deviation of primary position in 107/137 eyes (77.1%) was within 10 prism diopter (PD) of the primary position without any limitation of gaze. 52% of the 105 patients had suppression of 1 diopter (D) and 87% had suppression of more than 1 D. 79% of the patients had acquired an esotropia. The visual fields were restricted in 24.4% of the patients. A statistically significant correlation was found between the extraocular muscle function and the alignment. Binocular vision was attained in 90% of the patients before surgery. All the patients were satisfied with the cosmetic and social outcome. EOM transposition is a safe and successful procedure for restoring a good alignment in the cases of acquired and congenital strabismus, as well as esotropia, especially hyperotropia. The surgical outcome depends on the excellent surgical technique and a stable conjunctiva.
